During high school years, everyone has the dream of one day being a Senior. With this title comes power, privilege, and prestige. On September 5, 1990, we the Class of 1991 (all 283 of us) inherited this elite title. It was not, however, thrown into our laps. We earned it through twelve years of experience. We had experienced the first day of kindergarten with its uncertainty and excitement; we had performed in our first official sports match, we had received our first real report card (and perhaps tried to hide it from our parents), and most tragically, we had experienced our first broken heart.

Thirteen years ago, our parents escorted us down to school and we were signed on the list of members that would one day be the Class of '91. At first, we didn't know what school would bring to us. We were taught letters, numbers, colors and shapes but perhaps the proudest day of all was the day when we first signed our own names. This precious paper was hung on the refrigerator for all to see. From that point on we learned phonics, social studies, and the times tables. Elementary school was a time of basic learning and playground experiences with young friends.

When we signed off from our eight different elementary schools, we all went to the Junior High. Our scope was broadened to include a complete assembly of The Class of 1991 for the first time. We established different, larger groups of friends, and applied ourselves in specific areas of sports and art.

We soon outgrew the Junior High as well, and arrived at Melrose High School. We have been given many more chances and responsibilities that in all have shaped our personalities. High school has been a lot of work, a lot of action, and a lot of fun. The years have gone by in a flash; we have arrived at the time to sign off.

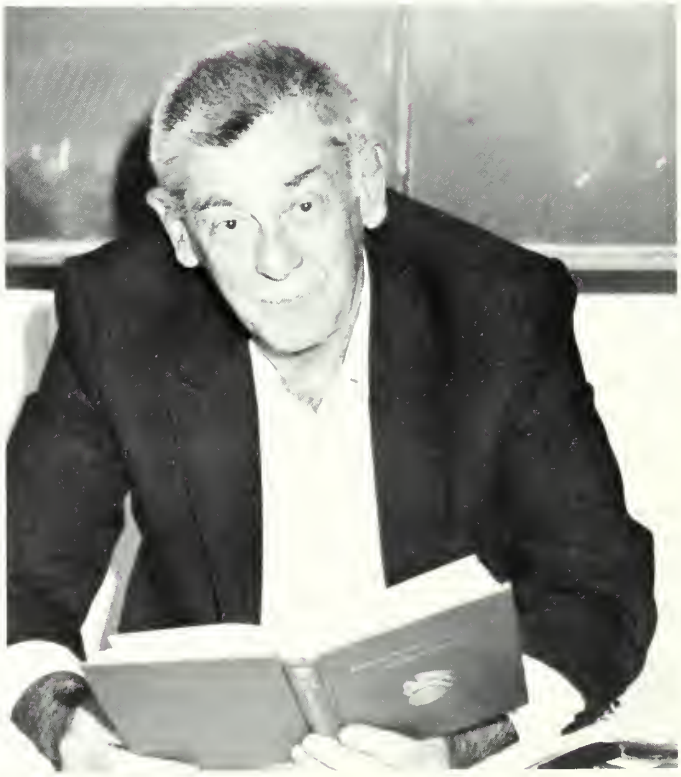
Then why is our theme "Signing Off" rather that "Sign Off or Sign*ed* Off"? The present tense is used due to our desire as MHS students to keep always the events and people in our present lives close to our hearts. In this senior year we are cramming in term papers, college applications, senior events, and more, yet in the back of our minds we know that these high school days will soon be over. Therefore, the purpose of the 1991 LOG is to put our years at MHS on permanent display. While we can never experience our high school years again, we can leave a long-standing mark of our lives up to this point. We can look back on friends and teachers that had a profound effect on our lives. We can remember the activities in our lives. Perhaps we will not fully realize the importance of these people and events until they have passed by. Therefore, this book will be a memory-jogger and constant link to the past.

"Signing Off" entails a definite end, yet one that must come to pass. We will retain our title as "Senior," excited about the future, happily remembering the past, and signing new marks on the world in the present.

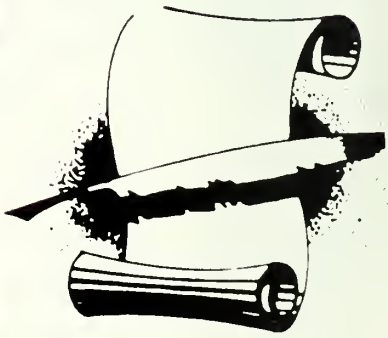
DEDICATION

Mr. Philip Burr

Mr. Henry Hughes



Mr. William Cooper



The 1991 Log is dedicated to three outstanding educators, who have taught at Melrose High since . . . well, for many, many years. They will all be greatly missed and we wish them all the best of luck.

Mr. Burr grew up in Medfield, otherwise known as the Sticks. After attending Centre College and Boston University, he fought in the Korean War. He was a decorated member of the U.S. Marines, winning the Navy Cross. Upon returning from the war, he taught at Medway High School, where he coached Football, Basketball and Baseball. He also taught at King Philip Regional School. He came to Melrose in 1962, and for a time, coached Sophomore Football. Mr. Burr would like to move to Cape Cod or Florida when he retires. He plans to keep in touch with all his friends, staff and students, whom he considers "Jewels of Heaven."

Mr. Cooper grew up in old-fashioned Exeter, NH. He graduated from U.N.H. University of Wisconsin, and Salem State College, majoring in English and History. Mr. Cooper always dreamed of doing as little work as possible and still succeeding in life. He has accomplished this goal, (according to his students), and plans to retire and go bird-watching every day. Mr. Cooper will always be remembered by his students as being loud, laid-back and witty.

Mr. Hughes grew up in Medford, which he considered bigger, but not as exciting as Melrose. He attended Dartmouth College and graduated with degrees in History and Sociology. He fought in WWII in the Army and was one of the major causes of the Allied victory. His life-long desire was to become a well-liked teacher. He has achieved this goal and more at M.H.S., where he was also one of the all-time greatest coaches of Hockey and Basketball. Mr. Hughes is looking forward to retiring to his Cape Cod residence and swimming two miles each morning.

X marks the spot

Even though the Cross Country team "only runs through the woods", their work this year shows that running isn't as easy as it seems. Their record may not reflect it, but a lot of hard work went into keeping the team out of last place.

Neither doctors appointments nor poor excuses nor dark of early morning kept these girls from their practices. Even in the worst of weather the team worked hard towards a victory, when Coach Kevin Allison promised he would finally shave off his beard. (It couldn't happen soon enough!)

With co-captain Kristen O'Hare out of the running for the season with injuries, co-captain Katie Woods worked hard on her team's physical condition, while her partner in pain lifted their mental spirits. Also aiding their captains were some newcomers who brought both new legs and new attitudes. Seniors Gloria O'Reilly, Jen Peters and Andrea Wallace all helped build a future winning M.H.S. team.

Some things the team will always remember: green socks, DFL-"Who wants to be last this time?", disappearing competitors (despite maps), trips to Franklin park, and lunch at Fuddruckers. Hopefully next year co-captains Aimee Dion and Jenna Liberman will lead the team to greater heights, without losing their way. "Jenna, where are you?"

Leader of the pack

Injuries are something that every sports team comes to expect. For some reason, though, the Raider cross-country team has never had a serious problem with this. As the saying goes, however, all good things must come to an end. This is painfully true of the 1990 season. Although the team was promising and well trained, it couldn't overcome the array of injuries. For the first time in many years, the harriers fell far below the .500 mark.

With Bill Porter, Tony Babcock, and co-capt. John Baldi injured early in the season, sophomore Pat Lynch came on strong, holding the number one varsity spot for five meets. Co-captain Greg Drake, junior Dave Jones, and sophomore Bryan Walsh did well as the middle runners but the team had trouble placing in the top three, losing several close meets to teams that were beatable.

By midseason a whole new string of injuries arrived, but Bill Porter was once again running. He slowly but surely made his way to the front of the pack again. Also contributing for Coach Allison and Coach Hannabury were Steve Dooher, Ed Burke, Ben Chan, Tim Bogan, Steve Beardsley, and Greg Huntley.

Despite the strange and unfortunate turn of events, the Raider cross-country team persevered. This year's team will always be remembered as the one that never gave up. There were times when the future didn't look bright, but pride was never lost.

Stick to it

The team room bustles with pre-game excitement. The radio blares and laughs and shouts are heard above the music. The girls Varsity Field Hockey team dons their plaid kilts and sharp cleats, and occasionally a head bandana for an imposing Rambo-type effect. They tape up the grips of their favorite sticks and head out to the fields. They then greet the opposing team, huddled for the game plans, and rushed out excitedly, ready to tear up the field.

Although the Varsity team did not have a majority of wins record in history this year, there were many exciting games throughout the season. When playing Watertown, the defending state champions, Melrose proudly managed to keep up a zero-zero score until the very end of the second half. During their last night game against Wakefield, Melrose scored within the last two minutes, giving the Raiders the victory.

According to Varsity captain Alison Durant, all of the players this year were outstanding. Particularly standing out are senior Jennifer Poulos and junior Kelly Kimball, who together scored all of the goals of the season. Poulos, along with senior Erin Lynch, was also a member of the All-Star team. Another outstanding defense player was senior Lisa Herrington.

The Junior Varsity team had an uplifting record this year with many wins and ties. According to Coach Nancy Arena, "The whole team worked well together, and there really weren't too many standing above the rest." She did mention Lynda Cerrato and Stacey Herrick as doing quite well on offense, and team leader Lauren O'Brien worked up a tough defense.

The Varsity, Junior Varsity, and Freshman Field Hockey teams make up one of the most spirited and hardworking sports groups in Melrose. Their bonds of friendship range far beyond the field. They are always ready to pick up their sticks and lace their cleats to rush in for a victory. As the years on the team go by, Field Hockey becomes more than a sport to the girls on the team; the Field Hockey team is a family.

We get a kick out of it

The hot Indian summer day weather only raised the fever of the girls soccer team; today is the day of their home game against Winchester Sachems. The Sachems, also the defending state champions, are said to be the best team in the nation. Their fierce eyes, muscular legs and effigy of a Melrose Raider were all put forward to scare the Melrose team.

"Choppin' Broccolei!" yelled the Raiders emphatically, remembering their cheer borrowed from Saturday Night Live. Undaunted, the girls proudly donned their red and white. They knew the Sachems planned a 15-0 defeat over them. But if the Sachems wanted that shut-out, it would be a steep uphill battle to get it!

Fierce offensive and defensive moves kept the ball going back and forth across the field like a slow tennis serve, never scoring a point. Halftime had the score and 0-0, bringing an uplifting feeling for the Raiders and inducing groans of disappointment from the Winchester team. The top of the second half brought a goal to the Melrose side. The kick was placed by Melissa Cuppernell, and the Raiders couldn't have been happier.

Although the final score was 4-1 Winchester, it was a long way off from the Winchester plan. The tough defense for Melrose was led by goalie Denise Giordano, who took the position of goalie as a new effort this year and did an incredible job. Co-captain Meredith Wilson returned from a bout with mono to use left-footed offensive and defensive halfback tactics. Co-captain Gina Helein spiritedly defended the Melrose net with Jeannette Ingalls and Nicole Vadala. Also working hard in the halfback positions were Jen Synnott, Jen Lomastro, and Laura Boston.

The soccer team struggled this year, knowing they had terrific players on their team, and often cutting the score very close. They improved their past years' record substantially. In the hot September weather or the cold winds of November, unfailing effort and high spirits gave the girls soccer team a hardworking and rewarding sesason. Ahead above the rest

What can be said about Melrose soccer that hasn't already been said? This year's team played harder than ever but unfortunately could only come up with a classic Melrose soccer record of 3 wins, some losses, and 1 tie. They stayed in every game until the final whistle blew an never once gave up. This attitude combined with the All-Star play of senior sweeper Toby Hober, team MVP goalkeeper Colin Hesketh and field general Alex Cataldo gave the team its four shut outs. Their internationally renowned forward line contained a devastating attack that twice dented the almost impeccable record of the league champs from Lexington.

The team would like to thank the parents for their continuous support, the cheerleaders (when they're around), and the years record number of fans for sticking around, especially at the last game.

A special thanks goes out to Coach Stewart, Coach Applegate, and Coach Hart.

The team would like to dedicate the year's accomplishments to the only man who can look upon a 6-1 loss as a victory: Coach Hart.

Let's all do the bump

This was a special year for the Girls' Volleyball team as it was the first season that they had a winning record of eleven wins to five losses.

It all started when they won the first game of the season against Lynnfield. Although they did not win every game, they beat every team in the Middlesex League at least once, and brought themselves to the State Tournament by beating Lexington in a home game in a beautifully decorated gym, meant by the girls' parents to psych up the team.

The State Tournament was an exciting experience for the Raiders. They brought many Melrose supporters to Cambridge Ringe and Latin for the first tournament game. However, they were plagued with incomplete serves, and sadly lost that match 2-0.

Along with having a lot of parental support and a new coach everyone thought was excellent, the team had a very optomistic outlook throughout the year (their feelings could usually be described as "wicked psyched"!), and has especially fond memories of the bus rides to the away games.

On the whole, this was definitely one of their best years and as one player puts it, "We wish the season wasn't over."

Slippery when wet

The 1990 Girls Swim Team swam to new depths under the leadership of Captain Jen McLaughlin. Things looked grim at the start of the season with only one senior and four juniors, but with the contribution of a lot of talented underclassmen, the team had a successful season. After surviving the grueling outdoor morning practices, the few who remained continued to work hard all season and many set new personal best times.

Though not great in number, the swimmers were full of spirit. With the help of many late night psyche signs and some original uniforms, the team had some great wins. The highlight of the season came in the final meet against rival Wakefield in which the team pulled off an exciting victory in the final seconds.

The team would like to thank coaches Richard Whitworth and Zanita Smith for all of their work and support. Also, many thanks to the parents and fans who fought their way through the crowds to attend the meets.

The team will never forget . . . . Ladies in Red, steam chats, Cheryl's flying spaghetti, "Go Betty!" back rub chains, "Shut up Dooley", the route - "Jen, wrong house . . . again!", "Hey, who moved those walls?" Putt it in

Aside from a few accidents with golf carts . . . . The golf team, under the leadership of Coach Rick McDermot and team captain Nate Brodeur completed an impressive season. The first few matches were relatively easy, although the victory over Woburn was exciting, as they were a solid, tough-to-beat team. The high point of the season was the win over Burlington. Last season, Melrose lost to Burlington, so the two teams ended up sharing the 1989-90 championship title. But this year, Melrose made sure that such a thing would not happen again. The last few matches of the season were important, and a close game with Stoneham kept the Raiders on guard. Once again, Melrose came out on top. The season finale against Lexington was also a nail-biting match. All ended up nicely with an undefeated season, garnering yet another Middlesex League Championship for the team.

Give me some skin

Throughout history there have been many greats in sports-especially when it comes to football. Individual standouts including Jim Brown, "Mean Joe Green", and Joe Montana. Team dynasties were created by the Steelers of the '70s and the 49ers of the '80s. The Melrose Varsity football team continued to build on its dynasty of winning years with this years' successful campaign in the Middlesex League.

The team was ready for a winning season by mid-September. After a slow start against Malden, the team was quickly labelled unstoppable. The offensive line was complete with Captain Howie Eddy, Jim Murphy and Eric Sousa. To catch quarter-back Andrew McNeilly's spellbinding passes were Jim Bleiler and Jason Williams, Dan Foreman and John Barstow were respected rushers, while the defensive line was strongly the led was strongly led by Casey Wolf and Vernard Fennell.

The Raiders went seven league games undefeated until facing a tough league leading Winchester squad in early November. McNeilly's passing game was virtually shut down by the stiff wind, making the game on the ground crucial.

The Raiders played a tough game, but their championship hopes were lost on a cold windy day in November.

The Thanksgiving day game was a classic defensive standoff. It was indicative of a hard working Melrose team that has accomplished a lot and will undoubtably continue to do so in the future.

The Melrose Football Cheerleaders had a very energetic, fun season this year. We had many good memories through the summer and the season. We'll never forget ELITE CAMP with the soccer Cheerleaders-toe touches Winchester-knee dance-yell once, twice, three times a lady-"Best dancers." Never forget "Raider kickoff day" at the Beardsley's in N.H. Memories during the season-DEMERITS-3 hour practices-Burlington game drench-Competion-Hi 64-Jackie G "Bring that beat back" - Shannon S. "Bring that pizza"-t-p-ing-Lizard. We would like to thank Leeann Sacherski and Mrs. Leeman for their dedication. Good Luck to underclassmen Cheerleaders you were great. Best of Luck to Melrose Football team and Class of 1991.

The soccer cheerleaders had a great season cheering for the varsity boys. They were, by far, the most enthusiastic group we've had the pleasure of cheering for. We would like to wish the team the best of luck in the upcoming season and to all graduating seniors the courage to face the "real world."

As a whole, our squad worked together well and with that we greatly improved our image! We would like to thank our coach Mrs. Skaar for all of her help and never ending support. Also, much thanks goes to the coaches of both the Varsity and J.V. teams. Congrats to these graduating seniors: Captain Erin Savage, Captain Jodi Marinelli, Suzie McCoulbugha, Melissa Wike, Tara Pescatore, and Heather Troynak. Best of luck to next years squad.

Memories: "Cheerleader's stance!" at cheerin' camp! How 'bout those demerits! Erin - Monkey calls! Kerri - Yes, you were supposed to wear a turtleneck! Tara - "Feel's Good!" "I hate that cheer!" Bye, Guys!

Dashing through the snow

It is often romantic to believe that a team can win merely by having "heart" or a great deal of pride. Unfortunately, this is simply not always true. Case in point: Melrose Indoor Track. The team is comprised of athletes that work hard and really want to win. Without making excuses, the team's lack of great success can be explained in two areas: a small number of competitors and non-existant indoor training facilities. Opponents often outnumber the Raiders three to one, coming from programs which train indoors. Melrose is often starting from a defecit which no amount of pride can erase.

The boy's team was led by tri-captains John Baldi, Greg Drake, and Brian Lottridge. Also contributing for third year Coach Bob Maccini and Assistant Coach Bob Coughlin were seniors Dan Forman, Toby Hober, Nick Fasano, and Andy McNeilly. Young prospects included junior Bill Porter and sophomore Dave Catanzaro. With a small core of dedicated runners, the team managed two wins. Several other teams were given close meets.

For the girls, co-captains Erin Lynch and Alison Durant led the way for the smallest squad in the league. Other point scorers included juniors Sara Dolan and Katherine Daniels, sophomore Jenna Liberman, and freshman Becky Hale. Hale, a 45 yard hurdler, is a top hurdler according to Coach Maccini.

For better or for worse, everyone remembers their experience with Indoor Track. Whether it be for one practice or five years of practices, the cold, windy days of training with close friends will never be forgotten.

High Hoops

As the cold and stormy signs of winter approached, the girls' basketball team began dribbling, shooting, and sprinting into a new season. Through all the terrible weather, the team trudged to many vacation and Saturday practices. Coach Matt Ginatassio whipped the girls into shape and although they had a slow start, the team quickly warmed up and started playing like pros.

The team sure "strutted their stuff" when game time arrived. Lexington and Belmont were very close games in which all the players tried their hardest. The close win over Winchester certainly put the team into high spirits. As co-captains Katie Lennon and Alexis Mastronardi cheered their team to victory, the girls came up with two more explosive wins over Woburn and Girls' Catholic.

While the team sweated hard during game time, many talented individuals shone. Guard Julie Fitzgerald led the team with her high score of twenty-nine points in the team's win over Winchester; it seemed that Julie never missed! Guard and forward Gina Helein never failed to dive after a loose ball or to heave wild but good attempts at the basket during a game. The strong reliability of Amy Morrill and Michelle Cirrone proved useful in many tough situations. Center Katie Cargill always tipped the ball in the Raider direction and added to the power under the boards.

With all of its individual strength, the team did not do as well as it expected during this year's season. But any promising younger players can certainly note what a strong and powerful defensive and offensive group this year's team proved to be.

Shooting for the stars

It is said that living up to the expectations of a great team is one of the hardest things for a team to do. Although they may not have been great, the preceding Melrose basketball teams have, to say the least, had very respectable seasons, this year's being no exception.

The team is comprised surprisingly of mostly juniors, a few sophomores and their token senior Keith Dwyer. The captains, juniors Mike Kostur and Andy Lennon, have led this team to outperform its expectations.

Some of the season's high points include a victory over Wakefield to become number one in the Middlesex League. The Raiders ranked 10th in the state despite the fact that the preseason picks had them placed near the bottom of the league. The Melrose squad also beat Lexington twice this year to make it 6 consecutive wins over the league powerhouse. Finally, the team also clinched their ninth straight winning season.

Additionally, several Melrose records were set on an individual level. Junior guard Rob LeGregga was ranked 3rd in the league with 3-pointers and had six during one game. Captain Mike Kostur, who averaged 15 points and 15 rebounds a game, leaped for 20 rebounds against Belmont. The third Melrose record to be set came when Captain Andy Lennon, who averaged 21 points a game, scored 37 points to help beat Reading.

The team would like to give special thanks to Coach Nick Papas.

Checkmates

As soon as the two o'clock bell rings, the players pick up their bags (which are sometimes as heavy as themselves), dash to their cars, and drive to practice. Although most teams are able to use Melrose High's facilities, the hockey team must go to Hockey Town in Saugus for their practices. Once at the rink, the players put on their padding and then go out to learn what it is for.

Hockey practices are demanding, draining both coach and players of energy. Tired and sore after long workouts, players look forward to games, which will show how much of their hard work has paid off. They also know, however, that the games are not without their own costs. When they chose to play hockey, each of these students knew that they had chosen to play a hard sport. "Hockey is a physical sport," admits goalie Chris Bourque.

Despite their skill at gliding across the ice, the hockey team has not found it easy to glide into first place. Although many of this year's players returned for their second year, the team's record shows that they couldn't put all of their experience together for a successful season. Winning, although important, is not everything, and this team managed to have a good time.

Pinpointed

Wrestling is a sport which requires the athlete to be in top shape and use nearly every muscle in his body. The team puts in a two to three hour workout every day after school, and there's a lot more on the agenda than just wrestling. Weight training, stretching, and endurance workouts are key parts of each practice. Wrestlers can be seen running through hallways, stairwells, and on the bleachers throughout the season. Also a common sight is a wrestler working out while heavily clothed, in hopes of losing some weight.

Due to the efforts of Coach Frank Smith and Assistant Coach John L. Sullivan, the team had a successful season. Some top grapplers were senior tri-captains Jim Bleiler, Tony Babcock, and Cory Thomas, as well as senior Vernard Fennell. Also promising were Charlie Tedeschi, Tim Babcock and Matt Murphy, all underclassmen. Some memorable moments include Danny Schumaker's pin in .8 seconds versus Waltham and the exciting dual meet versus Belmont which resulted in a close Raider win.

Success in wrestling, perhaps more than in any other sport, relies on a great deal of hard work. This year's team showed that it had what it takes to use this preparation to their advantage.

Perfect balance

The gymnastics team was incredibly motivated this season, scoring no less than 124 points at each meet. The only meet in which the girls did not score over six points more than their opponent was the three point loss to Stoneham, and the highlight of the season was the record 130.55 trouncing of Winchester.

What makes the success of the team even more amazing was the roster of injuries. Sophomore Alicia Daley suffered a bad fall at one of the first practices, resulting in a broken nose. Freshman Kara Grant broke her foot, and sophomore Erin Sierak was unable to complete the season due to a broken leg. In addition, sophomore Kerri Todisco hurt her knee.

Coach Carla McCormack pointed out that although Captain Kristin Dolan was the backbone of the team, everyone carried her own weight. She mentioned that while no one girl could score a nine, there were several who received eight's. One such team member was junior Alison Roselli, another of the injured. Plagued by back spasms, Roselli often performed in obvious pain.

Dolan, the only senior on the team, was proud to note that there was a lot of comraderie, and fun, among the girls. She wishes everyone good luck next season, and a word of advice: "No Fraternizing!"

Slippery When Wet

Swimming during a New England winter isn't what most people would call pleasant. For the boys swim team, it's all in a day's practice.

As usual, the Raiders began with returning champion swimmers, including League All-Stars, John Garipay and Greg Sampson, both Juniors this season. Also returning was undefeated senior co-captain David Cuttino, who captured state champion titles in the 50 and 100-yard freestyle races last season. This year, the All-Star list increased to four, with Garipay and Sampson clinching the spots for the second time, adding Cuttino, and including a new freshman swimmer, Paul Kroon, who was noted as the season's "biggest surprise."

As the scoreboard indicates, the swimmers had a successful season. Clinching the win of five races at the league meet. They will send five swimmers to the State Championships. These swimmers include Paul Kroon, Dave Cuttino, and John Griffith in the freestyle, Greg Sampson for the backstroke, and John Garipay for the breast stroke. Other key-noted swimmers include juniors Mike Batchellor and John Bernadakis. This season, however, did have a sore spot. As co-captain John Griffith explains "We had a young team with a lot of freshman and sophomores swimming for the first time. We also had a small team, which hurt because most of our meets were in six lane pools." Nonetheless, the team usually mounted this obstacle.

The team remembers Mr. Grant, who retired from coach last and will retire from teaching this year. His favorite quotes such as "You're gonna be a hero!", "Have I got faith in you!", and "You may not be the best, but you're all we've got!" sparked humor and confidence that led the team to fun-filled winning seasons. The team thanks and wishes the best for Coach Grant. This season marked the arrival of new coaching personel, who enjoyed the continued excellence of the team. The Raiders would like to send "Thanks to Linda and Mr. Dooner for all their patience and understanding."

Memories include: blowfish, Brinley's DQ's, "I can't do it!", Joe's flip turns, and Bernie's goggles.

Basketball Cheerleaders

Below: Excitement rushes through the crowd as Rachel Pescatore, Heather Troynak, and Jen Peters, together with their team prepare for their exhibition.

This year the sport of boys basketball was more than just a sport, its members made up a family. According to one of the cheerleaders, Heather Troynak, "This team was the absolute best; you've never met a bunch of guys more appreciative (of the cheerleaders) and more fun to cheer for."

The cheerleaders themselves are pretty special too. When you think of the long hours of aggravation and bruises for four minutes of glory at half time, they deserve as much credit as the guys they're dedicated to!

Some fond memories include: "Beefing it out," with the spectators at the Lexington game, Secret Cheerleader food, the away game at Burlington, "Who's got the subs?", Whether or not to wear nylons, Good luck to Jen, Chrissy, Gina, Erin, Tina, Nicole, Nancy, and Rachel, and special thanks to LeeAnn, Mrs. Leeman, and MHS school spirit!

Hockey Cheerleaders

They may not be the Boston Bruins, but the Melrose High School hockey team is definitely up there, with their cheerleaders right behind them. They proved this the night they beat Watertown down from the number one spot in the league. It couldn't have been done without the spirit and confidence of the hockey cheerleaders! (and a little house trashing and toilet-papering before the game!)

Special memories of the season for the girls are: Secret Cheerleader food, bus rides, and a special thanks to the "Dedicated Fans", the coaches, and Good Luck to the underclassmen . . . "It's here, it's there, it's everywhere!"

You've got to love it!

The bottles accumulated quickly, filling up the van as the girls' tennis team turned from tennis rackets to the bottle bill. As Massachusetts is faced with budget woes, the girls did their part by raising $175. Certainly not a "backhanded" way to raise money for the Melrose Tennis Programs!

This fundraiser set the pace for an unusual season. One such highlight was when the team was abandoned by their bus after a cold, rainy Stoneham match.

Despite bottles, cans and wet uniforms, the actual playing went along with the Raiders faring well in the Middlesex League, coming in an inspiring 4th.

Varsity player Liz Vagianos notes, "It was a good season. We came out just a little better than average, but the losses were close . . . Everyone had a good time playing!"

Coach Lisa Antonsicci and her squad had a good and interesting season. As fans can note, the desire to play tennis is installed on the soul before birth, drawing these girls and so many others out year after year, racket in a comfortably yet controlled grasp, stance ready for action, eyes on the opponent, like cats ready to pounce on the serve and drive the ball past her opponent.

Aces on the court

The April breeze flowed across Ell Pond to ruffle the hair of the boys' tennis team during their match against Wakefield at the Crystal Street courts. "Nate Brodeur and Jesse Juliano were definitely decisive factors in that match," recalled Coach Peter Lund. Because his team was young and inexperienced, it was necessary for players like Brodeur and Juliano to bring recognition to the team.

The team actually had just two returning players from the previous year. While this would make for a difficult situation for most teams, the Raiders had no difficulty cooperating and getting directly involved with a group of people whom they did not know. They became fast friends as they shared the highlights and breakpoints, the ins and outs, the "love" and hate.

Their togetherness and perseverance shined through, even after their unfortunate loss to Reading, 3-2. This was the match that would decide in which bracket of the playoffs Melrose would be. All said and done, Melrose placed sixth in the Middlesex League with an overall record of six wins to five losses.

Although they fared well, like most great athletes, they want to strive for better. "The team gained a lot of experience this year and still did pretty well. We can't do anything but improve, so next year should be a good one," remarked Chris Mills. It won't be long until that fresh April breeze is blowing once again.

Spring into action

"Run? No, not me!" is perhaps the most common response among girls who are asked to join the spring track team. They usually expect track to be boring, painful, even tortuous. It is true that track is a challenging sport. Much time is spent on the roads, often in the rain. The girls are also expected to have complete training-it's not enough just to run. They did work in the weight room as well as form work.

Track was not just the expected this year, however. Unexpected were the pasta parties before big meets and the team sleepover at the end of the year. This helped friendships develop among teammates which naturally helped the team's performance. Individual performances also were a big factor. Major contributions included letter winners Jeanne McCarthy, Jen Peters, and Kathleen Gorman.

Through all of this, one thing stayed true. No matter how the team fared, they were always exactly that-a team. They always showed exceptional support for each other through a season filled with difficult loses in the Middlesex League. They were successful in that very important way.

"Everyone joins track to have fun", remembers junior Amanda McCarthy. "Well, it is fun, but it's hard too. We didn't do well, but we practiced a lot and there were good individual performances. Everyone was really nice and supportive of the new people, like me. It was a lot of help. Track was nice and all."

So now because of the higher morale and camaraderie, the MHS can hope to hear a lot less "No, not me's" in the future.

Running down a dream

There are no huge, cheering crowds at boys' spring track meets. Nor is there a band to rally the team on. There are no cheerleaders, waterboys or admission charges. The boys' track team does have, however, one of the most diverse groups of all school athletics.

Scott Sciretto ('90), Ray Rocha ('90), and Dan Zarella took the spotlight in sprinting. Zarella has been a "most pleasant surprise" to Coach Tim Morris, scoring in the 100m, 200m, 400m, and being a great force in the mile relay team. He also shows potential in several jumping events.

The middle distance portion of the team is still young, consisting of such runners as juniors Tim Hogan and Doug Rotundi, who were close competitors in the 800m all season.

The distance team was also young, but still proved to be a formidable power. Bill Porter was an individual standout, impressing the state. Also contributing to the cause were Pat Lynch and Steve Beardsley.

Yet the key to a successful track team is not just great individual performances. It is when the diversity of the team is utilized, when the team functions as one, that greatness is achieved. The Raiders are looking forward to a winning season in the upcoming year, and they have the potential to complete this seemingly impossible task.

Over and out

As the cold chills of winter slowly faded away, the boys brushed the dust off of their broken-in mitts and tightened the lacings of their new cleats Soon the weather began to warm up while the baseball team took the field. They were ready to "Play ball!"

After a close winning game against Belmont earlier in the season, the team, led by Coach J. Brickley, shut out Belmont to clinch first place in the Middlesex League. The players easily overtook St. John's Prep in the Eastern Mass. Division I North tournament. However, they fell short of Medford soon after. The team went a long way, but still relied on the basics: satisfaction of personal performance and teamwork.

Solid pitching by Jim Murphy lead the team to a shutout victory at Winchester, but he couldn't have done it without the strong defense of his teammates. Strong hitting by Chris Mitchell helped to overtake Lexington, but he was aided by other hard hitters of his team. Together, the players turned the season into a series of winning streaks and excitingly close games.

Every year, garbage collectors see a rash of cleats being thrown in the trash. Studies have shown this to be a normal response to the warming of air currents during a New England springtime. There is no need for fear. Boys lace up new cleats and oil up their old gloves and head for the diamonds, their love of baseball stronger and more valuable than any real diamond could ever be.

They passed the glove test

As the bell rang, signifying the end of the school day, students raced madly from their classrooms, chucked their books into lockers to hurry out the door and to be free. They would laugh and slouch the afternoon away, letting brains and muscles turn into marshmallow.

But thirteen girls hadn't even been thinking about their last class. They are an elite squad- the girls' varsity softball team. Every day, the physical workout begins promptly at 2:30 p.m. The mental workout, however, lasts from April to June, from the minute they set their sights on the varsity team list until the very last game. The varsity list this year was composed of very young players for a varsity team, including three freshmen and five sophomores, "all promising, aggresive young players," according to Coach Don MacLeod.

However focused the young team was in their games and at practice, luck was not on their side. They lost more than half of their games, but this slump never tore into their spirit and love of both the team and the game. The girls steadily improved, and to their delight beat the league-dominating Wakefield team by a tremendous score of thirteen to six!

One player who deserves a lot of credit for her team's many wins is Melanie Crawford, a sophomore who pitched against many older girls in the league and still fared well amongst the best of them. Other impressive young players were Deanna Gignac, a strong accurate player at third base, and Jen Guiry, a freshman with eye-catching hustle and a fiery attitude.

"We're a young team, and we played against some tough ones," remembers co-captain Ann Felker. "Some games were really close, others, we got blown away. It wasn't easy, but it was an active season."

With many young players gaining experience and returning for another season, an eye should be kept on this growing softball power.

The Student Government does a lot in the course of a year. They organize all the school events and assign special committees to make sure no detail is overlooked. They also take care of little extras like the Special Needs party and the very successful bloodmobile. Out of school they send representatives to certain government offices, as the State House and the School Committee. There they speak out for our school on issues that are important to the students such as educational budget cuts and no more night-time football games. Among the many other things it does, the Student Government helps clear up and simplify all the troubles and technicalities of the real government. According to Senior Class President Neal Dike, on being in the Student Government, "It gives you an understanding of how things really work in the Government."

There have been times when Melrose has dominated the scene in sports, the arts, or academics. During the 1980's, however, the Odyssey of the Mind teams at the school have brought a good deal of recognition in their own right.

Two teams, one high school team and one middle school team, still have thoughts of Spring in Iowa in their heads. After working very hard last year these teams qualified for the World Championships at Iowa State University where they represented Melrose very well.

Several local groups are attempting to solve a variety of problems in an even greater variety of ways. It is hoped that they can carry on the great Melrose OM tradition with pride.

Students Against Drunk Driving is a lot more than just another club. It's an idea that can save lives. Many posters are put up throughout the school and flyers are placed on car windshields at school functions, yet these are only reminders to the students. The real work done by SADD members takes place Friday and Saturday nights. That's when they make sure that people don't drive after they've been drinking and that friends take turns being the designated driver when attending parties. The success of SADD is not measured by an amount of money raised or by a certain number of activities, but by the deaths that do not occur and the tragic stories do not happen because the students are not driving drunk and are making sure that their friends aren't either.

The National Honor Society is a group of students who maintained a 3.75 grade point average throughout junior and senior year. As inducted members of the prestigious society, they are required to uphold the traditional values of the NHS. For scholarship, the members maintain academic standing, or risk suspension from the group. For leadership, they represent hardworking students in a large, diverse student body. For service, they are required to tutor non-members of any grade on a volunteer basis. For character, they uphold these fine qualities and are an inspiration to fellow students.

Other NHS projects include the Christmas raffle. All proceeds are donated to Project Bread. Also, on parent-teacher conference days, members provide refreshments and guide the parents through the trapezoid and squiggle-shaped hallways of the school. Indeed, the NHS encourages students to be hardworking and helpful in their everyday lives.

The Environmental Club is a new edition this year to Melrose High's organizations. Led by the efforts of president and founder, Elizabeth Dooher, it is a group of enthusiastic students concerned with the future of our earth and dedicated to increasing other teenagers' environmental awareness and letting them know what it is they can do to help save our world.

The club has been very active in Melrose as well as in other parts of the world. The members have been strongly promoting recycling in Melrose by writing articles for the Free Press and for the Imprint, and by talking teachers into putting boxes in their rooms for the recycling of white paper. The club has also been trying to stop the use of styrofoam in our cafeteria. Aside from the local events, the group has shown its support for other parts of the world by purchasing an acre of rainforest land in South America.

The main goal of the Environmental Club is to motivate everyone to do as much as they can, no matter how small it may be, to help preserve our environment - and our future.

Starvation and death are results of the lack of food and nourishment. Many people starve to death each day; they need help. Project Bread is the activity organized to try to reform the problems of the poor and needy. This year, Project Bread was again successful in raising hundreds of dollars towards soup kitchens and shelters all over the Boston area. The bake sale, raffle, and candycane sale raised over thirteen hundred dollars this year. When asked to comment on this year's Project Bread, publicity coordinator Gladys Katz said, "The cooperation of students assured the success of all the activities. This is a project that depended on students and faculty working together. It was a great success."

The Drama Club has been of a tremendous size since the entrance of freshman to MHS in 1989. This year, unbelievably, the club got even bigger. The 75 members share a love for the theater arts, yet have vast interests in the realm of a production. Some enjoy acting or assistant directing, some enjoy being a lighting technician, a sound technician, a costume or makeup designer, a set designer, prop coordinator, or any one of the many jobs to be filled. "Techies" and "thespians" join for weeks of rehearsal with Mrs. Cornelia Beliveau before the rewarding performances.

The fall production was the classic play, "I Remember Mama," recounting the life of Norwegian immigrants in California in the early 1900's. The Mass. Drama Guild competition show was "The Bridge," which is a satire based on the fable of the Billy Goats Gruff. The spring will bring a theatrical year end finale, and a club trip to New York City.

The Drama Club is one of the most active, hardworking, and dedicated activities in the school. The desire to be a part of the world of theater is inborn, and the members share this gift and are as close as family. Forgetting their experiences with the production is impossible.

Bonjour! Regardez le GRAND French Club! With 105 registered members, the club had their biggest year, not only in numbers, but in activity and spirit. The club planned an early International Volleyball Tournament for October, so other clubs set up quickly set up for the event. The sixty playing French Club members all wore club designed T-shirts in the French colors for a united front look. All the teams played hard, and the French proudly held a third place showing of fifteen teams!

Noel came next. In December, fifty members met at the school with their personally baked French desserts for a Christmas party. Also, everyone had a wrapped grab gift and participated in the Yankee swap. Everyone picked a number, 1 through 50, and everyone picked a gift and opened it, one by one. However, one could pick from among any opened gifts and trade his own. It came down to who wanted the cash, but one could take the mug instead! Well, everyone wanted OCTOPUS! (What is that game about, anyway?)

More French Club news- Mardi Gras, another Volleyball Tournament, a spring barbecue, and more. "Merci" to Mrs. Dooley for everything, and the officers wish the club to stay numerous and active for years to come.

German Club

t row: J. Donahue (Secretary), J. Anderson. 2nd row: J. Philley, K. Reynolds (Treasurer), J. Joyce, K. Daniels, J. Stavro, K. Burns, C. Maffeo, Mason, K. Broberg. 3rd row: J. Bernidakis (V.P.), G. Drake (President), T. Hober, E. Burke, M. Anthes, J. Oatis, Mrs. Isaacs.

It is said that true champions will prevail against all hardship. For the German Club, this included being ridiculed and taunted due to a poor showing in last year's volleyball tournament and being singled out as the club to beat - and beat badly - in this year's tourney. The Deutschklub pride shone through, however, and the team dominated the tournament, not losing a game. That makes it three of four for this amazing squad!

The club does have other plans as well, of course. It is hoped that this year, the ski trip can actually be organized!! It may not come true, but it can remain a dream for German clubs to come.

Latin Club

t row: A. Cataldo, E. Schnicker, N. Lord, K. Lennon-Consul, V. Fennell-Consul, S. Kumar-Quaestor, B. O'Callaghan-Aedile, M. Jendrysik, N. arcione, J. Curtin. 2nd row: Ms. Werneth, M. Daniels, J. Carlberg, D. St. Amant, L. O'Brien, A. Daigle, A. Roselli, M. Gillis, J. Faragi, K. Butts, Sampson, J. Guiry, L. Herrick. 3rd row: J. Lomastro, A. Vagianos, W. Porter, G. Lee, B. Synnott, J. Roman, M. Wong, T. Hogan, M. akredes, C. Penney, A. Gray, J. Robillard.

Although the number of students in Melrose High who take Latin is relatively small in comparison to other languages, the Latin club has certainly done its best this year to make itself known and active around the school.

The club has held many events, including a Christmas party, in the home-ec suite, where they had a grab and ate ethnic foods, and a pizza party later in the year. The club also participated in the annual language club volleyball game.

All in all, the Latin club has proved to the rest of the school that, although their number is small, their enthusiasm is phenomenal.

Italian Club

"Direct from Venice, Rome, and Sicily, it's the Melrose High Italian Club!" Although this advertisement has not come to pass this year, the Italian Club has been remarkably active. In the annual international Volleyball Tournament in October, the Club put forth a record number of players (24, to be exact). Also this year, some new events were begun, including the Christmas party, complete with home-baked Italian foods, and the club pizza party.

Whether traveling, playing or eating, the Italian club is the Italian student's haven.

"Hola y buenos dias." -Hello and a good day to you. This started the first Spanish Club meeting where the election of officers for 1990-91 took place. Since then, the over seventy membered club has participated in many exciting activities. The volleyball tournament brought the Spanish Club together as they had cookies and great fun all afternoon. The fiesta before Christmas started off the holiday season with a lot of crazy games and a pinata smashing to take part in. The members look forward to Mardi Gras and the Spanish Club's own Taco Party later this year. Until then, the Spanish students keep the spirit alive - "¡Viva Espana!"

Boom, boom, boom-boom! The pusle of the bass drum echoes through the air as the marching band takes the field. In late August, the band started learning its drill to perform at many half-time shows and competitions this year. Director Frank DeGiacomo sweated away with the band and was closely aided by drum-majors Peter Casey and Laura DeGiacomo. Finally, all the practice paid off as the band performed with excellence during ten half-time shows and three competitions by winning-for the first time ever-a trophy for best music. Thanksgiving slowly rolled around and as the musicians marched their last steps, the feeling of being the best marching band ever to leave MHS made them proud.

"Okay girls. One, two, five-six-seven-eight" chants Diane McCarthy. The music starts and the girls begin twirling. A championship team, the majorette squad is made up of juniors, with the exception of senior captain Becky Stavro. Much hard work goes into this year-round activity. Throughout the fall, the majorettes perform with the band at football games, rallies, and competitions. Over the winter the squad perfects new routines to present at NEMA competitions in the spring. Last year, a novice squad was organized and went on to clinch the gold at a NEMA competition.

Colorguard

The fall of 1990 was an exciting one for Melrose High's colorguard. The prodding of Captain Wendy Groves and Coach Diane McCarthy, as well as the long, hard, work of the whole group during their all-day Saturday practices paid off in the end, with four great numbers, including a dance routine. The colorguard also received a trophy this year, which was exciting because it was the first one in many years. They also ended up with 4 stars at MICA, including a five star rating in the visual category.

All in all, the 1990 colorguard was an enthusiastic, hard-working group, making an exceptional and entertaining season!

Around The World In 91 Days

Seven cities of Spain were visited by fourteen students from the freshman and junior classes of last year during their April vacation. From Madrid to Torte Molinos, Mrs's Wheeler's troup had a blast, although the much-anticipated absence of a drinking age was ignored. Thus, due to the native food, all were forced to sustain themselves on bread and water. Three o'clock bedtimes were de rigeur, leading to the phenomenon of entire tours being taken in through a wall of sleep. But Iain didn't mind, as the group passed temples, museums, and topless beaches. Wait! Did he say topless beaches? Most people woke up for that. Everyone agreed that it was a "real fun" trip. And Mrs. Wheeler, they all want to go back!

Top left: Participants on the 1990 trip to Spain pose amidst the vista of a picturesque Spanish town. They include Mrs. Wheeler, S. Spadafora, T. Murphy, K. Henderson, P. Doherty, tour guide Iain, S. Mace. Bottom: The travel group visited many beautiful Spanish churches such as this one in the city of Grenada.

April in Paris

The $1500 couldn't have been better spent. True, certain parental figures think that college might have been a good idea, but the week in Paris during April vacation was well worth it. Amateur Parisian Mr. Peter Brown organized and chaperoned the group of 30 Melrose High students that took off for the city of lights from Logan airport.

Having a working knowledge of Paris, Mr. Brown reserved a hotel within sight and walking distance of the Eiffel Tower, and also gave information on how to get around on the city's Metro system. With their British guide, Richard, the Melrosians turned Parisians explored the city. Notre Dame, legendary home of Victor Hugo's hunchback, was the first stop. Later in the week, other famous were seen, such as the Loure Museum, L'Arc de Triomphe, and Pere LaChaise cemetary, burial place of the Door's lead singer Jim Morrison.

On a longer bus ride outside the city, the students saw the chateaux of the Loire valley, and also Versailles, home of King Louis XIV. One wet and rainy day, a lone bus sloughed through the puddles of Giverny, home and workplace of Claude Monet, and also his creative inspiration.

When not out on tours, the students were given free time to explore the sights and sounds of Paris. Small boutiques and bakeries were the main attraction for most, especially the bakery next door to the hotel, which always had a handy supply of French pastries. "They were always willing to feed Americans," says Tara Ziolkowski.

All in all, the trip was a great success. Paris and its monuments measured up to everyone's expectations. Recalls Junior Tim Hogan, "I laughed, I cried, it was better than Cats."

"BUON GIORNO! BENVENUTO A MILANO!"

This greeting was given to excited Italian students as they landed in Milan on April 14, 1989. Lead by Mrs. Cocchiara and assisted by Mrs. Werneth and Mrs. Augart, the group would enjoy a 10-day tour of Italy. Still in awe at the memory of his experiences there, Anthony Alfano recalls, "It was just . . . just awesome! When we stepped off the plane it was like stepping another world!"

An awesome world it was. From Milan, the Italian Travel Group ventured to Venice, Florence, Rome, and even visited Vatican City, the smallest country in the world.

The students were exposed to the arts of the Renaissance, such as The David in the museum in Florence. They gazed in awe at the ceilings and stained glass windows of the Sistene Chapel in Rome. Walking through the ruins of the Colsseum and the Forum, students walked through a piece of history, where the great Cicero lectured and where Christians were killed by tigers in accordance with the rules of Roman tyrants.

Besides the exposure to Italian art and history, fabulous eating and glamorous shopping were enjoyed during free time. And most of all, everyone had a chance to try out his Italian on the natives!

The group was tired, yet satisfied as they boarded their plane from Milan to return to the United States. With fond memories and wishes to return someday, the students and chaperones bid "arrivederci" to the land of the boot.

Fit to be tied

It is the day that school secretaries were made to fear. Year after year, they try new excuses; allergies, a hernia, writer's block . . . and all fails. Most have resigned themselves to this day of secretary infamy. They struggle in their seats and peer for their coffee mugs over piles sky-high of little pink slips. What are these gargantuan stacks of paper made of? Dismissal notes. 288 of them. It is the day of the Junior Prom. The students, however, have no such problems with this day, besides a little difficulty in eating and concentrating in class. The sooner the dismissal, the better, so that girls can rush to hairdressers to be sure at least their hair turns out well in spite of any makeup, dress, or date disasters. The boys get dismissed to play some basketball and pick up their dates' nosegays before showering and putting a little mousse in that crew cut for better, stiffer spikes.

It is a day that is lived through only to get to the night, when guys and girls pose for parents', friends', and neighbors' cameras before riding off in stretch limousines to their prom. Suddenly, everyone looks new and polished, one can hardly recognize that boy or girl who has always worn jeans and a T-shirt to school. And when the music starts, well, goodbye conversations and awed stares, just pull your date close to you, whether it's a future spouse or just a friend, and wish the night would never end.

The Junior Prom at the Sheraton Rolling Green in Andover was a close-knit, friendly, all-out good time for the class of '91 and it's invited guests. Good food was provided by the Sheraton Rolling-Green, photography by Purdy Vantine, and the sounds were laid down by Ken Babin. Thank you for "The Humpty Dance" by Digital Underground not just once, but twice. And as the last notes of Journey's "Open Arms" faded away, the lights came up after three hours of "Bustin' a Move", when the Class of '91 was as one. Hugs and goodbyes were exchanged before signing off and groups of handsome guys and beautiful girls drove off into the snowy, cold night.

Halloween Dance

Top right: As alike as four peas in a pod, Jennifer Synnott, Erin Lynch, Erin Schnicker, and Kara Manning had a hard time dancing together. Top center: Trying desperately to see through his sunglasses, Greg McLean does his best motown dance. Bottom right: An interesting blend of pop cultures are Leeann Pollard and Karole Norcross.

Out of breath, the boy reached the Swallow's Nest cafeteria doors. What a night this had been for him. The Senior Halloween Party had begun at 6:30 P.M., but at 5 o'clock he still didn't have a costume. He knew that his friends had been working on costumes for weeks. So, desperate, he visited his dark cobwebby attic. Finding a long black cloak and rubber hoodmask, he was satisfied. Only by this time, it was 6:30! Throwing his costume in the trunk of his car he raced to school. Finally, with his costume on, he was ready. "But why is the cafeteria so dark?" he wondered. "Did I miss it? Is this the wrong night?" Fear swelled in his heart, school by day is scary because of teachers, school by night is a scary, dark, creviced mystery. Slowly he pulled open the door.

Screams and music blared out at him, but they were excited, happy screams and funky modern music pumped in by the disc jockey. It was now 7:30, but everything was just beginning. For the past hour everyone had been puzzled as to who they were standing next to, so clever were the costumes. There were Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, Cards from a playing deck, Princess Leah with her father Darth Vadar, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, Sylvester the Cat, Pinocchio, Marilyn Monroe, Cone-heads, and so many more. They danced, showed off their costumes and played games like hanging-doughnut eating contests and musical chairs, but time flew by so fast, and everyone just wanted to dance.

At 9:30 the goblins and ghouls, punks and pumpkins were all sent home in the cold, dark night. Even though it was Monday, and there was school the next day, it had been the best Monday night ever.

With keys firmly in hand, he pulled his cloak close to him against him to protect him from the cold winds, happy and much calmer now. It was his Seniors Only Halloween Dance, shared with all of his classmates, and everyone had a blast.

A NIGHT LIKE THIS

"Just three hours? For a winter ball? That cannot possibly be enough." When the hours were announced for the Winter Ball, this was the general reaction. The senior dance, usually held in late January, was pushed earlier so that later senior activities could be planned. With beautiful dresses and snazzy suits, everyone wanted to stay and parade themselves for a longer span of time.

In the end, the Winter Ball, held in the Swallow's Nest Cafeteria, ran from 6:30 p.m. until near 11 o'clock, a far stretch from the original plan. The seniors were grateful for the extension, because everyone was having too much fun!

D.J. Ken Babin set up the music, letting the Class of '91 dance the "Electric Slide" twice, and playing the ever-famous "Chicken Dance." While the seniors were dancing the underclassmen from Peer Leadership set up the drinks and the dinner. Underclassman SADD members were on hand before the dance to pass out flyers reminding the Class of '91 to have a great time but not to drink and drive.

Three hours? Four, five, or ten? The Class of 1991 laughed and danced together on the icy cold night of December 7, 1990, with the warmth of Christmas to come and the love of these present moments together with their class warm in their hearts.

Powder Puff

Down! Set! Hike! And off went the girls of Powder Puff Football on that fateful October day. They had been waiting for months to show the "real" football players how good they are. Finally, on the coldest, windiest day, and on the muddiest field, they got their chance.

The Red Rascals lines up their defense against White Lighting and the game begins. Fourth down, no score, the Red team gets the ball, and the same thing happens: no score. Jody Marinelli of the Red Rascals tries to liven this play by taking a graceful tumble into a rather substantial mud-puddle.

The game continues for another ten minutes until beloved White Lightning lineman Amber Weeden has a severe fall and dislocates her ankle. She braved the pain exceptionally well, and even shows up at the Halloween Dance later that evening.

Jan and Judy Bushee. Reginald and Robert Kray. Dana and Dave Forman. The Doublemint girls. Heather and Heidi Troynak. Ann Landers and Abigail Van Buren. Debbie and Jennifer Wharton. All of the above have one thing in common: being a twin.

This leads to a childhood of matching Health-Tex outfits and shared birthday parties. It leads to comments like "Oh, identical twins . . . are they both girls?" and questions like "What is it like being a twin?"

Often it is assumed that twins are virtually the same person. But in reality twins are similar to any other pair of siblings-they have their own interests, their own pals, their own strengths and weaknesses. At the same time, twins do share a special bond and have a deep understanding of each other. Indeed, to have a twin is to have the best of both worlds.

Although at time twins are not called by the right name, and people sometimes make too big a deal of the fact that they share a date of birth, there is rarely a twin who would change the way things are.

Student Experience is Shared with MHS Teachers

The bell rings and the students are surprised that the time has gone by so quickly. They put down their coffee mugs, grab their briefcases, and rush to class. Wait a minute . . . coffee? briefcases? These are not the typical MHS students; they are students for the week. These 160 teachers from the Melrose Public School System have enrolled as students in a seven-day Summer Institute. Dr. Barbara Krysiak, associate superindendant of schools, along with Mr. Anthony Scibelli, Mrs. Nancy Solano, and Mrs. Nancy Vose arranged this program to reform traditional teaching practices in the Melrose Public Schools. The 76 workshops within the framework of the Institute include educational technology, children's literature, peer coaching, and an introduction to the major learning styles of modern students. So many ideas, practices, and materials were presented in such a way that, as MHS's Dr. Wood expresses it, all of the teachers experienced "a rejuvenation of thinking about teaching . . . ". So many teachers were positively affected by this Institute that their whole teaching practices were changed.

Mr. Anthony Scibelli calls the Institute "a great pre-school year experience." Mrs. Diane Lord agrees, noting that "The institute made me aware of different methods that I will use in my classroom. The presentations also made me think about my students as different kinds of learners." Mrs. Anne Donahue too noticed the difference in learning styles and would like " . . . to be more tolerant of another's style."

Recently, state educational systems have experimented with the idea of integrating ALL levels of students together in classroom experience. Melrose teachers are also curious with this new wave thought.

It happens every year, striking each member of the senior class with unfailing accuracy and deadly potency, leaving devastation in its waste. Just what is this horror? It is the senior term paper, without which graduation is impossible! It is a dreaded senior ailment, the plaque of every senior's waking hour.

Some may say, "Oh, it's not so bad." These are the planners, the compulsive students who set into every project with deadly earnest. Every aspect is marked on the calendar and completed on schedule. They check out books from the library as soon as the paper is assigned, and begin taking notes immediately. At the end of the week a topic has been chosen, and at the end of two weeks, an outline has been produced. Science has yet to discover the cause of this inhuman behavior, but whatever it is, it is a blessing to whomever it strikes!

Those who are not bitten by the planning bug in dealing with their term paper have a bit more work ahead of them. Although like the compulsive students they check out their books on the day of the assignment, that is where all similarities end. Before learning about their chosen topic, they will learn a lot about procrastination. They will discover innumerable reasons not to start reading and incredible excuses to cover their lack of a topic. They will acheive an expert skill at postponing the writing of their papers, but they also will know the nights of worrying and the nightmares of seeing blank pages before them. The nightmare seems to become real as the day before the due date arrives, and the entire day and night is devoted to creating a term paper from scratch. Coffee, Jolt soda, or cold showers are some of the ways students strive to stay awake in order to finish the tortuous assignment on time. When the sun breaks over the horizon the final words are typed and the paper is completed. Every single student can say that there is nothing like the feeling of turning in that paper that has hung over their heads for nine weeks. No matter what the grade, it is done, and there will be no such assignment again . . . well, until college, that is!

A Sign of Support

It is the night before the big game, match, or meet and all the good little student athletes are sound asleep: That is, almost all of them. For, canvassing the streets of Melrose there is almost certainly that car filled with late-nite possessors of school spirit. They are especially well known to the man working in the convenience store. These people are the ones that bring a most unusual item up to the counter. Yes, they are the dreaded toilet paperers. Ten, twelve, maybe even fifteen rolls at a time. They can't be stopped. It's quite simple. They are on a mission. Their radio is on a bit too loud, they are driving a bit too fast, and they are always followed by a trail of toilet paper.

But it is most important to note that these people are not everyday revelers or petty hoodlums; they are professionals. They park around the corner from their victims' homes. No words are passed amongst them; they know what they must do. One of them hits the trees while another takes care of the bushes. The eerie sound of rolls hitting the ground and paper being tangled through leaves pervades the air. When the breeze begins to blow and the hundreds of strands begin to sway in the trees, it is time to become daring. It is at this time that the obnoxious sign is hung in the doorway. Then the porch and stairway are covered to prevent the inhabitants from leaving quickly. This, of course, is necessary to avoid a possible pursuit.

With the job complete, the giggling can begin. The perpatrators dash madly for their car and slowly pull up the street. The high beams are on, so that they may view their masterpiece well. Then come the long blasts on the horn and the yells out the car window.

As the unknowing victim tears himself away from the T.V. to see what all the noise is, the reaction to the wonderland of pastels every where is always the same:

"I can't believe I didn't hear a thing!!!" And there lies the satisfaction of toilet papering. Not a sound was uttered, and such a piece of beauty was created. But, it's more blasts on the horn, a higher volume on the radio, and . . . On to the next house!

Once upon a time there was a world of knights in shining armor, of kings and queens and maidens fair. There was a world of peddlers and Vikings in which to have a meaningful life meant to die in battle.

This world disappeared hundreds of years ago but has been reborn for two weeks every year at Cooper's Campground outside Slippery Rock, Pennsylvania, just north of the much disputed over city of Pittsburg. It is much disputed over due to the origin of this rebirth:

Some twenty years ago a group of people with an acute fondness for the Middle Ages founded the Society for Creative Anachronisms (SCA). The group consisted originally of only a few people from California, but has grown into a national organization and has attracted the interest of people from all over the world. It has literally become the "Current Middle Ages" and has separated the country into a number of different "kingdoms". The two largest of these, the Midrealm and the East (that's our side), meet exactly in Pittsburg, and neither side wants to control this city. Thus, every August each kingdom, along with its allies, battle with sword and skill to see which side ends up with Pittsburg. (This year the East was the victor; the Midrealm gets stuck with the city!).

This event is called "Pensic" or (to SCAdians) "The War". Throughout this spectacle, average citizens don everything from heavy carpet to full suits of armor and bash each other around with makeshift "weapons".

Those who are not fond of being beaten and "slain" may choose to take the easy, painless way of attending this event, which is somewhat like a King Richard's Faire in which costume is required. There is a large merchant area where the weary medieval traveler can purchase such fineries as hand made jewelry, Japanese katanas (Samuri swords), mystical unicorn horns, or even mead, a popular medieval drink.

If one is up for more action during the day but not quite ready for battle, one can try a shot on the archery field or join a quaint Bardic Circle. There are also classes on anything from making armor to fencing techniques. These classes are actually free of charge!

Running down the street like a fool, your shoe falls off. You reach to retrieve it and the nearby fence snags your sweater. The friendly azalea on the corner rips your tights. While trying to liberate yourself, your knapsack slithers off your shoulder and hits you in the face. Passing cars are slowing to stare now. Ruddy with shame, you notice HIM/HER cruising by on HIS/HER way to punctuality. Finally functioning normally (?) again, you remember the lab report on the floor next to the TV.

What have you done to deserve this? After all, it is not your fault. The alarm never went off. Really. Or your hair needed one last renovation job. Or the earrings to go with your shirt were hiding. Or your shoelace broke. Then the begging started.

"Mom, can I please have a ride?" Or, if you are one of the privileged few, "Can I please have the keys to the car?" Although your record for tardies (such an annoying word) is unsurpassed, the answer, of course, was a resounding "NO".

So when you arrive at homeroom just in time for A Block, gasping for breath, keep in mind that you just broke your old time for getting to school.

Although many would find it unbearable to sleep in a tent, share ten shower houses with 6,000 other people, and miss a weeks worth of television shows, this is a fantastic experience for anyone who is interested in medieval life or just wants to get away from it all for a while. Who said chivalry was dead?

A Peek Through the Door

"Where are you going to apply? Do you want a co-ed school?-in state?-urban? What will you major in? Will you play sports?-be in the band? Are you planning to live at home?-in a dorm? . . . " On and on the questions are fired at you, until finally you answer with a confused and humble "I don't know?" College. The big seven letter monster that will cold heartedly drag us from our dear Melrose High into a scary and lonely world of dorms and roommates. "Help?", you ask. Sure. Take a deep breath and read on . . .

Picture this: a campus. Crowded dormitories. Excited dormheads. Parents and nervous students. Pillows, suitcases, tennis rackets, trash bags, teddy bears, books, basketballs. This is the confusing scene at Milton Academy on July 1, 1990. The summer has just begun and classes resume as the Massachusetts Advanced Studies Program (M.A.S.P.) kicks off its tenth year.

After attending M.A.S.P. students have a better sense of what college life will be like. A cafeteria-styled dining hall and a very confusing library are just a couple of ideas from M.A.S.P. that can be associated with college life. Others are: meeting new people, understanding and adapting to difficult courses, participating in extra-curricular activities, and, of course, living in dorms.

Everyone was nervous. It was extremely hard at first-meeting a new person and developing a friendship. In fact, many felt depressed, lonely, and unhappy. After a while, however, the students realized that everyone felt the same way, so in a matter of days, everyone felt secure and at home. Once the ice was broken, it wasn't hard at all.

The constant hard part, though, was the courses. They ranged from Western Philosophy to Problem Solving. In addition to a major study, an English course was required. These ranged from Autobiography to Poetry. Classes met a total of twenty-four hours a week, including Saturdays. This schedule was difficult to adapt to at first. Eventually a routine was developed and students wisely organized their time.

Apart from the classes, there was lots of fun to be found during sports and music activities held every other day for three hours. Volleyball, Ultimate Frisbee, and Jazz Band were just a few of the fifteen activities offered. While adapting to and understanding advanced courses, students still had the energy to play hard and have a great time.

After a tiring day of classes and sports, it was a pleasure to return to the dormatory. Fun-filled nights in the dorm eased the stress of classes and tests during the day. On some nights students watched movies and raided refrigerators, while others just stayed up and talked all night long. Dormatory life was comparable to one big slumber party and it was one of the best aspects of M.A.S.P.

M.A.S.P. is a great experience to enjoy before venturing into college. The similarities between M.A.S.P. and college life are endless. In a sense, M.A.S.P. is a six-week peek through the door of college life. M.A.S.P. holds the door open so students can look in, and the door is open for everyone to peek into. This peek will either calm or arouse the mind about that feared topic named college as the waiting continues until the door is actually opened in September.

"I'm SO Hungry!"

"I'm going to DIE if that bell doesn't ring now!" The countdown begins-T minus 5 . . . 4 . . . 3 . . . 2 . . . 1 . . . RING! Doors fling open and students charge down halls towards the Cafetorium-another day, another lunch at MHS.

By the time I get there, the lunch lines are almost five miles long! I am still puzzled over how these students got here so fast when I am totally cut off by three students of amazing strength and size. I merely shrug my shoulders and gain a step as I begin straining to glance at today's menu. Three more steps and it's in full view.

Ah, the pizza line again. I had a craving for a hamburger today, but it soon vanished as I saw the length of the line. Besides, a transfer of lines is nearly impossible at this stage of the game-I all ready have my tray in the pizza line. Oh, well.

Four more steps and I can see the pizza-looks like veggie or plain. I feel kind of daring today and yell for a piece of veggie pizza with fries. I take three more steps to the cashier as I grab a package of chocolate chip cookies. Money is transferred and I immediately lunge for the open space at the ketchup dispenser.

It is now ten minutes into the lunch period and I walk to my table after successfully obtaining a juice from the machine. I reach my table, place my tray down and start the daily hunt for an empty chair. Mission accomplished, I sit down to eat. By this time, many brown-baggers are almost done with their homemade lunches. The cafetorium slowly empties as I continue eating the semi warm pizza and fries. I finish up with almost five minutes to spare. I return the tray and converse in the lobby briefly. I just can't wait for tomorrow's lunch.

We think of you in silence and make no outward show,
But what it meant to lose you
no one will ever know.

You wished some farewell to others you said good-bye, but still, you were gone before we knew it and only God knows why.

Your Golden Heart stopped beating with tender hands at rest,
God broke our hearts to prove
He only takes the "Best."

To some you maybe forgotten
to others, a part of the past,
But for us who loved you dearly
your memories will always last.

Nothing can be more beautiful than the memories we have of you,
To us, you were someone special
God must have thought so too!
